

Database

|             |  |
|-------------|--|
| Entry Date  | 2024-02-05   |
| Source      | Spittal MJ, Bismark MM, Studdert DM. Identification of practitioners at high risk of complaints to health profession regulators. BMC Health Serv Res. 2019;19(1):380   |
| Link        | Link   |
| Source Type | Empirical study  |
| Domain      | Groups   |
| Subdomain1  | Doctors  |
| Subdomain2  | Aberrant   |
| Key Points  | A practicable method of predicting the risks of complaints against doctors healthcare professionals, especially doctors and dentists. A useful spin off of an earlier study. (Bismark et al Entry no 46 in this database) Fig 1 showing that a score of >35 predicts certainty of another complaint within the next 24 months should be noted by all medical administrators and regulators with responsibilities in this area. |
| Citns       | 19   |